CHOOSING A CANDIDATE

Third Ward Republicans Select a Good Man.

JOHN J. PURINTON THE WINNER

George Croxall Declined the Place, But the Winner Went Through With a Rush. Plenty of Enthusiasm and Promises to Land Mr. Purinton on Top.

The caucus of Republican voters of the Third ward, for the selection of a candidate to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of William George, was held in the council chamber last evening and resulted in the nomination of a good man.

The meeting was called to order, and W. L. Smith was made the chairman, while Frank H. Croxall was elevated to the position of secretary. Rules to govern the caucus were selected, and it was decided the voting be conducted by ballot, the chair selecting George H. Owen and Colonel Watson to act as tellers. The announcement that nominations were open brought George Owen to his feet and the name of George Croxall was placed before the meeting, but Mr. Croxall respectfully declined. Doc Ferguson then gave out the name of John J. Purinton, and John Hohman followed him closely by presenting George Peach. As these three made up the total nominations, the balloting began, and soon settled the matter. Mr. Purinton was rewarded with 25 votes, and Mr. Peach got five. After the winner had been declared, F. H. Croxall stated that as Mr. Purinton was not present it would be a good idea to have a committee wait upon him and find his pleasure regarding the nomination. A motion with that expression as its foundation carried with a rush, and Mr. Croxall and H. L. Simms were appointed to bring in the candidate. The committee returned in a short time, bringing Mr. Purinton with them, who upon being informed by the chair that he had been nominated did not seem surprised.

Mr. Purinton accepted the honor in a neat speech. He felt gratified, and appreciated the expression of his neighbors. When duty called he believed it was the duty of every good citizen to lay aside personal matters and do all in his power for the public good. He only asked that they guarantee him their support. Then he was willing to accept. Every man, Mr. Purinton thought, should be governed by his own ideas of right, and duty to the commonwealth should be considered before duty to the party."

Colonel Watson, drawing a conclusion from the vote and the enthusiasm that had been shown, and in consideration of the interest that had been taken in the caucus, moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and that every man present pledge himself to give his support to the candidate. The motion passed with unanimous assent, and the caucus adjourned.

"The nomination of John Purinton for council is one of the best things the Republicans of this town ever did" remarked a leading member of the party this morning. "They need some good men in council who know a thing or two about law, one who will devote his time to the work of the body, and is not afraid to speak right out in meeting when it is necessary. The council of a city like Liverpool should be a representative body, and I hope the Republicans of the Third will not neglect to come out in force on election day, even though it is a special, and vote to a man for the candidate."

NOT A SUCKER.

D. J. Smith and All His Friends Stand by the Ticket.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW—My attention has been called to the following: "The question agitating the minds of the Republicans is whether Dan Smith can be relied upon as being under the party lash sufficient to insure his supporting the man who has the nomination that Daniel was counted out of."

It is true that Dan did receive the nomination for representative and was unjustly and unlawfully counted out, and he and his friends feel that the guilty parties should be behind the bars, while they know that if like acts are ever attempted in the future, all good Republicans will see that the laws governing such fraudulent acts are enforced and the parties punished according to law. I do not believe that the unjust and unlawful act done to D. J. Smith and his majority of friends in the Republican party is at present agitating their minds. They denounce the crime and know that Dan has enough common sense to stand with and for the principles of the Republican party and the friends of his country, when right, and against the party that has, since the year 1832, been the enemy of liberty, labor and law, and has perpetrated the highest crime known to the law against all three—the attempt to overthrow the government in order that it might perpetuate servile labor. Upon their advent to power in 1892 their mad assault upon laws which kept labor fully employed at good wages, and their creation of a law which added to the national debt and reduced labor to the low plane of the illy paid labor of Europe, stamped their worthlessness. The manner in which they crippled our industries, destroyed the sheep husbandry, and made the farmer suffer, except that branch that could be styled sectional—those who raised cotton, rice and sugar—showed the cloven hoof. I am for the election of the whole Republican ticket without a scratch. General Bushnell is true and tried, and will give the people a splendid administration of our state government. He will check extravagance in the expenditure of public funds, and at all times show that he is a man. Above all, I am for the nominees for the legislature, knowing that they are pledged to vote for Hon. J. B. Foraker for senator. He is one who will not flatter the rich, or deceive the poor, but as far as legislation is concerned both will stand equal in the law that he will support. He is as broad in his political views as any man in America, and he has not one drop of sectionalism in his head. He is the right kind of a man to put in a position where he can give counsel as to the proper time to enforce the Monroe doctrine, and one whose business has taught him the inwardness of financiering. Let every friend of mine who loves his country and desires her future glory, looking to the true happiness of all Americans, stand by the ticket. Let us see to it that there is no sulking or skulking in our own ranks, but on the 5th of November walk to the polls, remembering that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and that united we will gloriously win, but divided we will ignominously fail. Yours truly,

D. J. SMITH,

ANOTHER LETTER.

Democrats Continue to Send Those Coxey Appeals.

A prominent business man is sad today. His lip hangs down and his head is bowed. He is accused of being a Coxey man, and his heart is sad within him. The other day when he opened his mail he found a letter from Chairman Anderson, of the state Democratic committee, asking him, pleading with him to forsake the party of Coxey and return to the folds of Democracy. Since the gentleman has never voted anything but the Republican ticket and always observed Coxey as a Democratic side show, he thinks of writing the impudent Anderson a piece of his mind.

DEMOCRATS, TOO.

They Nominated a Candidate For Council.

The Democratic caucus last night was a representative gathering, and the faithful who were present had little trouble in lighting on a candidate, F. P. Williams was selected, and as he was not present to answer for himself, it was taken for granted that he would accept the nomination, and make the race. Mr. Williams explained to a NEWS REVIEW reporter today that he had told the party leaders he did not want the nomination, but now that it had been given him he would accept it.

Another Judgment.

THE LEAGUE DID IT

They Were Responsible For Liquor Indictments.

MORE TO FOLLOW VERY SOON

The Organization Works in the Dark, but It Knows What It Is About and Is Moving Toward Better Government in the City—Some Startling Revelations For the Future.

While it has been suspected that the Good Citizenship league was responsible for the indictments against saloon keepers, the fact was not established until one of the most prominent members of the society informed the NEWS REVIEW that they were "hot on the trail of every liquor man who broke the law."

The member in question, who by the way stands high in the church of which he is a member and has never been known to falter when engaged in any enterprise, talked interestingly of the crusade, and made charges that would place some people in a bad light if the league desired to tell the court what they know, and it is not known but what this will yet be done. Said the gentleman:

"As you know, the league has a work to perform, and I think the indictments returned by the grand jury show that some of it is being done. If we must have the liquor traffic and its attendent evils right here in Liverpool, we propose to have it conducted according to the law we have. The laws are useless if they are not obeyed, and we propose to have them obeyed from first to last. The iniquity of Liverpool is startling when we know to what it amounts, and the league hopes to raise the moral standard of the town. It's got to be done or Liverpool will soon be as bad as Sodom of old. I understand that an effort is being made to bluff the boys who testified before the grand jury into taking back what they said; but that kind of a campaign won't go. We will stand by the boys, and we are strong enough to protect them at all times if they only let us know they are being persecuted. We don't propose to see them imposed upon, and we are strong enough to protect them at all times. Those indictments are by no means all that come either. What we have done in the past is nothing to what we propose doing in the future. We intend to go deeper into the evils that mark the city, and propose to put a stop to other infractions of the law that are now allowed to pass without a word of protest. One of the evils that will be discontinued will be the meeting of married men and women in basement resorts of a questionable character. We know the disgraceful orgies that are carried on in these places night after night, and if the city authorities can not cope with them we will take them to the county courts, where justice will be dealt out, or the power of the league will know the reason why. We are in full possession of the facts governing the existing state of affairs and some day a bomb will explode in Liverpool. This thing can not go on forever, and we who are law abiding citizens don't propose to let it. No I won't give you our plan of campaign just now; that would not be fair; but some day you will know all about it, for this thing has got to come. The league is a non-partisan organization, and we don't expect to gain our ends by partisan warfare, but we have an organization that we hope will be able to cope with all the evils of the city, and if it is not, we will increase the size and importance of our membership. Laws were made to be obeyed, not broken, is our motto, and as long as we can maintain the fight we will do it. The revelation has got to come, and there are people other than the liquor men who have to learn that they must obey. The indictments of the grand jury may do some good, but we expect that others must come before the city fully realizes the importance of our movement for law and order. We are hot on the trail of these people who break the law, and we will continue the warfare until the dawn of a better day for East Liverpool. What I am telling you is not from imagination, but facts which speak out in results. If you don't believe it, watch the next grand jury as close as you know how, and you will see."

The league was organized a year ago, and at once became a secret organization. Many members do nothing other than contribute to the funds and lend their aid in their influence, but there is an executive body connected with the organization whose duty it is to keep the work in hand, and in every personal way perform the labor of the society. They are not known to the public, do not seek publicity, but hope, nevertheless to attain their end.

NEXT MONTH.

There Will be Many New Cars on the Electric Line.

Superintendent Andrews states that the 12 new cars that are to take the place of the big cars at present in use on the street railway are to come from Detroit, and will be here the first of next month. They are vestibuled at both ends, each end is provided with a controller and track break, and all are said to be in good condition. They have been used a little on the Detroit line as horse cars, and will be much better for service on the local line than the cars now in use. All the old cars will be shipped to Detroit, where they will be repaired and refitted until their best friends would not know them. The strangers are thought to be the best cars from the great number used by the Detroit company, since they were selected from the total equipment by a man who ought to know.

RETURNED THE MONEY.

A Scandal Averted in a Secret Society By Reparation.

Members of a prominent secret society have been exercised recently over the actions of one of their number who has always been looked upon as trustworthy in the extreme. Not long ago he collected money for a purpose, but the purpose being abandoned the people who had trusted him with funds began to inquire for their money. A portion of it was returned, but there was some delay about the remainder and so many excuses came from the individual in question that sterner measures were decided upon. It was agreed that the law should have something to say about the matter, when the custodian suddenly paid up and the scandal was averted.

BROKE ITS NECK.

How S. C. Williams Was Provided With a Supper.

S. C. Williams, who owns an interest in the stave factory on the river front, was surprised the other evening by a fine supper. He was standing in the mill when a streak of darkness crossed his vision accompanied by a noise like thunder. The next instant there was the crash of breaking glass, and upon running to a window he found a round hole in one of the panes. Going outside the building Mr. Williams found a plump, fat pheasant lying on the ground with its neck broken. It had crossed the river, hid in the mill, and when alarmed had flown toward the light with disastrous results.

SCARED BY A SPIDER.

Homer Jackson Captured a Tarantula Today.

Homer Jackson, of Fifth street, had an experience this morning which he will not want repeated in the near future. The boy was engaged in unpacking bananas at a grocery store when a tarantula, well developed and vigorous, rushed from the midst of a bunch of the fruit and frightened the lad out of several years of growth, but the boy was not overcome. Fearing that the big spider, for it was a big one, would make its presence known in a dangerous way he killed it. The tarantula was an ugly one with legs several inches long.

LAZARUS AFTER THEM.

The Beaver County Detective Making Arrests.

Detective Ike Lazarus, of Beaver county, is on the trail of the men who robbed Dawson's store at Smith's Ferry, and believes he will land the whole gang in the next few days. John Cisco, long suspected of leading anything but the right kind of a life, was arrested yesterday, and is now locked up in Pittsburg awaiting trial in the United States court. The detective believes he will land the whole gang this week.

IN GOOD FORM.

The Football Team Have a Game at Last.

The football boys have at last got their organization in good form, and have arranged with the Steubenville Athletic club for a game in the West End, one week from Saturday afternoon. Alex Stevenson and Wilbur Snediker have been appointed to train the team, and a practice will be held this evening and tomorrow. Practice games will also be arranged for next week. The club has been named the Crockery City.

Fishing in the River.

I. N. Crable, Rev Foutts, Francis O'Hanlon and Joseph Turnbull went to Merill this morning and spent the day there in fishing. Some fine fish have been caught in the river recently, and the party hope to duplicate anything captured since the low water became such a factor in fishing.

HUMPHREYS HAS GONE

He Agreed to Quit Drinking and Go to the Infirmary.

TRIED TO COLLECT A BILL

But the Merchant Would Not Allow It, and Tommy Got Mad—He Was Formerly a Soldier and Likes to Tell of His Experiences.

Tommy Humphreys was in court this morning to answer the charge of throwing stones through the windows of a store on Broadway, and he told an interesting story when asked for a defense.

According to Thomas, he arranged with the owner of the place to peddle goods through town for him, and as a start purchased merchandise to the amount of $2. An arrangement was made whereby the merchant was to indemnify Thomas if he failed to sell the goods. As luck would have it Thomas was not successful, and he returned the goods, but could not collect the money. He went to Mayor Gilbert and asked advice on the matter, and was informed that he had better make another attempt to collect. This he did, but meeting with no better success was about to go away when a crowd of boys began to annoy him by throwing stones. The merchant, says Thomas, was greatly amused at the performance, and that made him mad. He was wild in a very few minutes, and committed the act for which he was arrested. He pleaded with the mayor for leniency, and promised to behave if he was not punished, also saying that he would go to the infirmary if he would not punish him. Then he said he would not drink any more, and the mayor, taking pity on him, allowed him to go. The arrangement was that Thomas should walk to Lisbon, but the trustees had John Arb to take out, and agreed to give Thomas a ride to his future home.

While the matter was being arranged at city hall, Thomas regaled the crowd with some of his experiences, telling them how he had been a soldier in the English army. He saw service in Ireland, and when out with a detail in search of a deserter, shot the man. Then he was transferred to the West Indies, where he saw service before he came to the United States. Thomas is an amusing story teller, and if the tales he tells are true he has had an eventful life.

WHO SUGGESTED TERMS?

A Little Inside History of How the Strike Was Broken.

"What was the cause of Secretary Davies' change in front regarding the strike?" was asked the NEWS REVIEW today, and then continuing the questioner said:

"One day he states positively he would not recede from the first proposition he made the men if it kept him here all winter, and that he would attempt to run the road without them. The next morning he grants the demands of the men. Either Superintendent Andrews proposed this settlement or Mr. Davies was instructed from higher authority. I have it from good authority that the superintendent is entirely to blame for the settlement. This looks more reasonable than to think Mr. Johnson would propose a settlement after the men had once begun the strike."

AN ENORMOUS LOSS.

Gilsonburg Almost Destroyed by Fire.

Special to NEWS REVIEW.

GILSONBURG, O., Oct. 24.—Nearly all the business portion of this place was wiped out this morning by a destroying fire. The flames started in a frame building, and spread with marvelous rapidity, licking up business block after business block until the most valuable property was consumed, and only a smouldering mass of ruins remained. The loss will reach fully $300,000, but some of the buildings were insured. No lives were lost.

TRUSTEES ARE RELIEVED.

The Incident in Which Mrs. White Figured is Ended.

The effects of the late Mrs. White were today shipped to her sister in Geauga county, and that incident is now considered closed by the trustees. They are greatly relieved because they say it has cost them no end of trouble and annoyance, and there is no reward of any nature in sight except the knowledge that they had done their duty. There are several matters connected with the case that will always be mysteries which can not be cleared up. Among them is the whereabouts of the trunk for which Mrs. White had the check, and her reason for coming to this place.

I understand that an effort is being made to bluff the boys who testified before the grand jury into taking back what they said; but that kind of a campaign won't go. We will stand by the boys, and we are strong enough to protect them at all times if they only let us know they are being persecuted. We don't propose to see them imposed upon, and we are strong enough to protect them at all times. Those indictments are by no means all that come either. What we have done in the past is nothing to what we propose doing in the future. We intend to go deeper into the evils that mark the city, and propose to put a stop to other infractions of the law that are now allowed to pass without a word of protest. One of the evils that will be discontinued will be the meeting of married men and women in basement resorts of a questionable character. We know the disgraceful orgies that are carried on in these places night after night, and if the city authorities can not cope with them we will take them to the county courts, where justice will be dealt out, or the power of the league will know the reason why. We are in full possession of the facts governing the existing state of affairs and some day a bomb will explode in Liverpool. This thing can not go on forever, and we who are law abiding citizens don't propose to let it. No I won't give you our plan of campaign just now; that would not be fair; but some day you will know all about it, for this thing has got to come. The league is a non-partisan organization, and we don't expect to gain our ends by partisan warfare, but we have an organization that we hope will be able to cope with all the evils of the city, and if it is not, we will increase the size and importance of our membership. Laws were made to be obeyed, not broken, is our motto, and as long as we can maintain the fight we will do it. The revelation has got to come, and there are people other than the liquor men who have to learn that they must obey. The indictments of the grand jury may do some good, but we expect that others must come before the city fully realizes the importance of our movement for law and order. We are hot on the trail of these people who break the law, and we will continue the warfare until the dawn of a better day for East Liverpool. What I am telling you is not from imagination, but facts which speak out in results. If you don't believe it, watch the next grand jury as close as you know how, and you will see."

The league was organized a year ago, and at once became a secret organization. Many members do nothing other than contribute to the funds and lend their aid in their influence, but there is an executive body connected with the organization whose duty it is to keep the work in hand, and in every personal way perform the labor of the society. They are not known to the public, do not seek publicity, but hope, nevertheless to attain their end.

NEXT MONTH.

There Will be Many New Cars on the Electric Line.

Superintendent Andrews states that the 12 new cars that are to take the place of the big cars at present in use on the street railway are to come from Detroit, and will be here the first of next month. They are vestibuled at both ends, each end is provided with a controller and track break, and all are said to be in good condition. They have been used a little on the Detroit line as horse cars, and will be much better for service on the local line than the cars now in use. All the old cars will be shipped to Detroit, where they will be repaired and refitted until their best friends would not know them. The strangers are thought to be the best cars from the great number used by the Detroit company, since they were selected from the total equipment by a man who ought to know.

RETURNED THE MONEY.

A Scandal Averted in a Secret Society By Reparation.

Members of a prominent secret society have been exercised recently over the actions of one of their number who has always been looked upon as trustworthy in the extreme. Not long ago he collected money for a purpose, but the purpose being abandoned the people who had trusted him with funds began to inquire for their money. A portion of it was returned, but there was some delay about the remainder and so many excuses came from the individual in question that sterner measures were decided upon. It was agreed that the law should have something to say about the matter, when the custodian suddenly paid up and the scandal was averted.

BROKE ITS NECK.

How S. C. Williams Was Provided With a Supper.

S. C. Williams, who owns an interest in the stave factory on the river front, was surprised the other evening by a fine supper. He was standing in the mill when a streak of darkness crossed his vision accompanied by a noise like thunder. The next instant there was the crash of breaking glass, and upon running to a window he found a round hole in one of the panes. Going outside the building Mr. Williams found a plump, fat pheasant lying on the ground with its neck broken. It had crossed the river, hid in the mill, and when alarmed had flown toward the light with disastrous results.

SCARED BY A SPIDER.

Homer Jackson Captured a Tarantula Today.

Homer Jackson, of Fifth street, had an experience this morning which he will not want repeated in the near future. The boy was engaged in unpacking bananas at a grocery store when a tarantula, well developed and vigorous, rushed from the midst of a bunch of the fruit and frightened the lad out of several years of growth, but the boy was not overcome. Fearing that the big spider, for it was a big one, would make its presence known in a dangerous way he killed it. The tarantula was an ugly one with legs several inches long.

LAZARUS AFTER THEM.

Detective Ike Lazarus, of Beaver county, is on the trail of the men who robbed Dawson's store at Smith's Ferry, and believes he will land the whole gang in the next few days. John Cisco, long suspected of leading anything but the right kind of a life, was arrested yesterday, and is now locked up in Pittsburg awaiting trial in the United States court. The detective believes he will land the whole gang this week.

The club has been named the Crockery City.

Fishing in the River.

I. N. Crable, Rev Foutts, Francis O'Hanlon and Joseph Turnbull went to Merill this morning and spent the day there in fishing. Some fine fish have been caught in the river recently, and the party hope to duplicate anything captured since the low water became such a factor in fishing.

HUMPHREYS HAS GONE

He Agreed to Quit Drinking and Go to the Infirmary.

TRIED TO COLLECT A BILL

But the Merchant Would Not Allow It, and Tommy Got Mad—He Was Formerly a Soldier and Likes to Tell of His Experiences.

Tommy Humphreys was in court this morning to answer the charge of throwing stones through the windows of a store on Broadway, and he told an interesting story when asked for a defense.

According to Thomas, he arranged with the owner of the place to peddle goods through town for him, and as a start purchased merchandise to the amount of $2. An arrangement was made whereby the merchant was to indemnify Thomas if he failed to sell the goods. As luck would have it Thomas was not successful, and he returned the goods, but could not collect the money. He went to Mayor Gilbert and asked advice on the matter, and was informed that he had better make another attempt to collect. This he did, but meeting with no better success was about to go away when a crowd of boys began to annoy him by throwing stones. The merchant, says Thomas, was greatly amused at the performance, and that made him mad. He was wild in a very few minutes, and committed the act for which he was arrested. He pleaded with the mayor for leniency, and promised to behave if he was not punished, also saying that he would go to the infirmary if he would not punish him. Then he said he would not drink any more, and the mayor, taking pity on him, allowed him to go. The arrangement was that Thomas should walk to Lisbon, but the trustees had John Arb to take out, and agreed to give Thomas a ride to his future home.

While the matter was being arranged at city hall, Thomas regaled the crowd with some of his experiences, telling them how he had been a soldier in the English army. He saw service in Ireland, and when out with a detail in search of a deserter, shot the man. Then he was transferred to the West Indies, where he saw service before he came to the United States. Thomas is an amusing story teller, and if the tales he tells are true he has had an eventful life.

WHO SUGGESTED TERMS?

A Little Inside History of How the Strike Was Broken.

"What was the cause of Secretary Davies' change in front regarding the strike?" was asked the NEWS REVIEW today, and then continuing the questioner said:

"One day he states positively he would not recede from the first proposition he made the men if it kept him here all winter, and that he would attempt to run the road without them. The next morning he grants the demands of the men. Either Superintendent Andrews proposed this settlement or Mr. Davies was instructed from higher authority. I have it from good authority that the superintendent is entirely to blame for the settlement. This looks more reasonable than to think Mr. Johnson would propose a settlement after the men had once begun the strike."

AN ENORMOUS LOSS.

There are several matters connected with the case that will always be mysteries which can not be cleared up. Among them is the whereabouts of the trunk for which Mrs. White had the check, and her reason for coming to this place.

PERFIDIOUS SILENCE

"A word from Senator Brice would have saved the tariff on wool"

JOHN SHERMAN

THE Hoeffer incident bids fair to become the most interesting of the campaign.

THE Washington Post remarks that "Jimmy Campbell is the circus parade that is to attract the people to their front doors, while Calvin S. Brice slips around the back way and works the senatorial game."

THE national committee can make no better selection than Pittsburg as the place for holding the next Republican convention. We would like to have it in East Liverpool, but Pittsburg has worked so hard for the plum that we gladly waive all claim in her favor.

CONSISTENCY.

The Dayton Journal loses no ground when it says:

"While Mr. James E Campbell is scoring the last legislature for authorizing five or six millions of county bonds, he has nothing to say of the 14 or 15 millions granted by his own legislature, which Morton L. Hawkins stigmatizes as the worst which ever sat in Ohio. That bond business is a matter of local interest for the reason that Dayton and Montgomery county is paying interest on $2,451,000 of bonds authorized by the Sixty-ninth, Seventieth and Seventy-first Legislatures. Of this amount the Campbell legislature, which was represented by three Democrats and no Republicans from this county and district, authorized $1,237,000. So there is the Montgomery county record, $1,236,500 in Campbell's term as against $136,000 in the last legislature. What kind of demagoguery is this flow of speech of our neighbor from Hamilton?"

GET OUT THE VOTE.

While it is probable that Candidate Campbell will be retired to private life in the next few weeks, the Republicans of Columbiana county should not forget to have every vote out on election day. The ticket is exceptionally good, from General Bushnell to the lowest office within the gift of the people, and it is the duty of all true Republicans to find the polls and cast their ballots. The Democrats are not doing a great deal in this county. Brice knows that his money here would only buy him a few scattering votes, and he does not care how many of that class go for Campbell. He wants the legislature, and it is in the close counties that he will work day and night in the hope of capturing a few legislative votes; but that is no reason why Columbiana should not roll up a big majority for Bushnell and the ticket. Give them all a big vote, and while doing it don't forget the duty owed to Charley Gill and every county candidate. We want them all in line, and every man elected by a majority that will show the measure of confidence which they enjoy. Let there be an outpouring that will not only prove the popularity of Republicanism, but one that will rebuke with righteous wrath the corrupt methods and lying arraignments of Democracy. Get out the vote, and show the people of Ohio that Columbiana knows how to do its duty.

ATLANTA'S GREAT DAY

The President and Cabinet at the Exposition.

SHOOK HANDS WITH THOUSANDS.

A Short Address Delivered by the Chief Executive—Hats Thrown Into the Air and Boundless Enthusiasm Manifested. The Party Leaves For Washington.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 24.—In accordance with the plans of the exposition management the exercises of president's day were all concentrated within the exposition grounds, into which the cohorts of visitors and large proportion of the population of the city emptied themselves during the morning.

After a review of the military the president delivered an address. He was introduced by President Collier of the Exposition company, who referred to him as the man who had been entrusted with the duty of wiping out sectional issues and lines.

The president was greeted by an ovation which lasted for several minutes. Hats were thrown into the air and boundless enthusiasm was manifested. His speech, although short, consumed considerable time in delivery because of the frequent interruptions of applause. At its conclusion Mr. Cleveland held an informal reception. A line was formed along the front of the stand and a squad of police kept it open. President Cleveland took a position on one of the steps and began shaking hands with all the people who pressed up to him.

For five minutes he grasped the hands of the great American citizens at the rate of 103 per minute. Then the number gradually lowered until he was shaking hands at the rate of one every second. In 15 minutes the president's face was covered with perspiration and he was evidently tiring. For 33 minutes he continued to shake hands with the throng and to speak a pleasant word to many.

He finally said that he was fatigued and the line was closed. The carriages for the party were driven to the stand and all were taken to the Piedmont club, where a cold luncheon with champagne was served to the company of 300 people. After luncheon the president began a tour of the grounds, visiting the government building, the main building, the negro building and inspected the exposition throughout.

The series of courtesies extended to the presidential party was concluded with a reception at the Capital City club which put itself on record as the most elaborate social function ever undertaken in the south. The chief executive reached the club accompanied by the cabinet and the ladies of the cabinet, and spent an hour or more receiving the 1,500 people present. Major Livingston Mims, president of the club, did the honors of the occasion.

After the reception the president and his party boarded their special train and left for Washington.

THE UNITARIAN CONFERENCE.

Church Extension and Temperance Reform Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Church extension and temperance reform were the themes before the national conference of Unitarians and other Christian churches. The discussion of church extension was opened by Rev. Charles W. Wendte of Oakland, Cal., who spoke glowingly of the outlook of the church on the Pacific coast.

Rev. George L. Chaney of Richmond spoke of the abolition of sectionalism in the south. The Rev. T. B. Forbush of Chicago said the central west awaited Unitarian missionaries, and he urged the appointment of 20 missionaries to work in that field. He urged also that Unitarian ministers should become evangelists as well. The Rev. A. W. Gold of Chicago said the problem to be faced in the central west was the division in the ranks of the Unitarians themselves. D. M. Wilson of Boston spoke of the progress in New England and pictured the outlook as bright and encouraging.

A meeting was held at All Souls' church, at which modern methods in temperance reform were discussed.

TO JOIN THE SPANISH FORCES.

Twelve Hundred Men and Boys Volunteer to Help Spain In Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—A letter received at the navy department from the commander of the United States steamship Yantic at Montevideo states that on Sept. 15 last the steamship San Francisco carried from that port over 1,200 Spaniards who had volunteered to join the Spanish army in Cuba. Eleven hundred of these were from Uruguay and the remainder were deserters from the Spanish army who had volunteered to return for service in Cuba.

A great proportion of the total number were mere boys. They were taken in charge on the San Francisco by a guard of Spanish soldiers and not allowed to leave. The ship bore no Spanish flag or insignia of nationality. No formal enlistments took place ashore, but each man, on boarding the vessel, presented a paper proffering his services to Spain.

COMPLICATIONS MAY ARISE.

Building of the Dam In the Rainy River May Cause Trouble.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 24.—International complications may arise out of the building of the dam in the Rainy river at Ratportage, Ont. It is claimed that the level of water in the lake will be raised four feet by the dam and that 60,000 acres of fertile land belonging mostly to the United States will be flooded. The Baltimore Packing company also claims that it will cost $20,000 to reconstruct its fishing plant. The Canadian shore is high and precipitous and Canadian interests will not be affected.

Formal complaint, lodged with the Federal authorities, has resulted in the dispatching of special agents to investigate.

APPROACHING THE END

The Testimony In the Trial of Durrant Completed.

ARGUMENT OF THE CASE TO BEGIN

After a Bitter Legal Struggle of Three Months the Defense Has Virtually Proven Nothing — A San Francisco Paper Sums Up the Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—After a bitter legal struggle lasting three months the testimony in the trial of Theodore Durrant is all in and the argument of the case will begin at once. When court adjourned District Attorney Barnes announced that he would not formally close the case for the people, and notified the attorneys for the defense that at most he would have but one more witness, whose examination would last but a few minutes.

The case would have ended in a pyrotechnic display of sensation if the testimony that was introduced had not been printed so often before that it was all familiar to everybody. Miss Carrie Cunningham, a newspaper reporter who visited Durrant at the prison frequently, testified that Durrant told her he saw Blanch Lamont on the second floor of the belfry, where she was murdered. While engaged in fixing a sunburner, Miss Cunningham said, he told her he heard a suspicious noise in the belfry, which attracted his attention. He crept along the ceiling of the church until he came to the belfry casing, where he looked through a crack and saw Miss Lamont.

The witness was subjected to a rigid cross-examination, in which an effort was made to show the means in which she had resorted to obtain interviews with Durrant. She said at the suggestion of the newspaper by which she was employed she expressed the greatest friendship for the prisoner and frequently sent him papers, magazines and flowers. She denied that she ever took an oath and kissed the Bible after promising Durrant not to publish anything he told her. She said she promised Durrant she would not publish anything he told her, and kept her word.

Only two witnesses besides Miss Cunningham were examined. Both were physicians. Their testimony was important from the fact that it showed that Durrant did not have the appearance of one who had been partly asphyxiated when he met Organist King in the church on the afternoon of April 3. King testified that Durrant was pale and trimbling when he saw him. When on the stand the prisoner corroborated King's testimony. Drs. May and Rosenstein, who were examined, testified that the first effect of gas was to flush the face and lips and inflame the eyes. Durrant, according to his own statement, had not had the symptoms. Physicians also testified that a man who for five minutes had been subjected to fumes of escaping gas from 24 jets would be insensible.

The Evening Post, in commenting upon the close of the case, says: "Now that the evidence in behalf of the man charged with the Emanuel church murders is all in, it is fair to compare what has been proved with the promises made in the opening statement to the jury when counsel for defense said he would prove beyond a doubt the innocence of the accused. With apparent sincerity, he stated he would furnish an unassailable alibi which would be supported by the strongest kind of testimony. He further said he would impeach the chief witnesses for the prosecution, and even went so far as to claim that before the defense was all in, it would show that another man than Durrant was the murderer. He pointed the finger of suspicion at Rev. John George Gibson, but did not go so far as to charge him with the strangling of Blanche Lamont and the mutilation of Minnie Williams. How the defense has failed is a matter of record.

"The promised alibi has not been established, and the testimony of the numerous witnesses called to sustain it, in an indirect way impeaches the story told by the defendant on the stand. The page in the roll call kept by Dr. Cheney is all that stands between the prisoner and the scaffold. If there is one juror of the twelve who believes it correct, the prisoner's life will be saved. The prosecution has shown, however, that it is a mere copy, and an erroneous one at that. It can easily be appreciated then that the document carries very little weight, especially as it is impeached by the negative testimony of 75 students and Dr. Cheney, who have sworn that they have no recollection of Durrant's attendance at the lecture on April 3.

"The effort of the defense to impeach the testimony of the leading witness for the prosecution amounted to nothing. The attempt to prove Durrant's innocence fell flat, as not a vestige of evidence that was presented points to such a conclusion. In fact, the case of the prisoner was stronger at the close of the case for the people. So far as Rev. J. G. Gibson is concerned, not a fact has been produced to connect him with the case in any manner."

The reason given for making the request is that these campaigns invariably unsettle business affairs and do an actual damage to commerce and manufacturing. The chambers to which the circulars will be sent will be asked to take similar action.

The bride's mother, however, is bitterly opposed to the union, and, it is said, threatened to suicide if they were married, and for this reason the nuptials were postponed. He had shot himself in the right temple during the night. Harnish left no message of explanation, but despondency over his business is assigned. He came here from Dayton, where he has relatives.

Coke Shutdown Probable.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 24.—Coal men here say they have information that a coke shutdown is probable. In the Kanawha valley the furnaces are not run half the time, and it is impossible to sell and ship the coke for lack of transportation, the railroads preferring to haul coal.

GLORIOUS RECORD OF REPUBLICANISM.

A Classic Summary of the Achievements of the Republican Party—The Famous Graveyard Passage—A Word of Suggestion and Advice to Young Men Who Are About to Cast Their First Vote.

An Appeal to Young Men.

"I see in this great audience tonight a great many young men — young men who are about to cast their first votes. I want to give you a word of suggestion and advice. I heard a very brilliant thing said the other day by a boy in one of our northwestern counties. He said to me: "General, I have a great mind to vote the Democratic ticket." That was not the brilliant thing. I said to him: "Why?" "Why," said he, "my father is a Republican, and my brothers are Republicans, and I am a Republican all over; but I want to be an independent man, and I dont's want anybody to say 'that fellow votes the Republican ticket just because his dad does,' and I have half a mind to vote the Democratic ticket just to prove my independence." I did not like the thing the boy suggested, but I do admire the spirit of a boy who wants to have some independence. Now, I tell you, young man, do not vote the Republican ticket just because your father votes it. Do not vote the Democratic ticket, even if he does vote it. But let me give you this one word of advice, as you are about to pitch your tent in one of the great political camps.

Your life is full and bouyant with hope now, and I beg you, when you pitch your tent, pitch it among the living and not among the dead. If you are at all inclined to pitch it among the Democratic people, let me go with you for a moment while we survey the ground where I hope you will not shortly lie. It is a sad place, young man, for you to put your young life. It is to me far more like a graveyard than a camp for the living. Look at it! It is billowed all over with the graves of dead issues, of buried opinions, of exploxded theories, of disgraced doctrines. Here are the tombs of Squatter Sovereignty, the Dread Scott Decision, Slavery, the Rebellion, State Sovereignty, Secession and opposition to the war. You can not live in comfort in such a place. Before I leave this graveyard I must point out to you a new-made grave, a little mound—short. The grass has hardly sprouted over it, and all around it I see torn pieces of paper with the word "fiat" on them; looking down in curiosity, and wondering what the little grave is, I read: "Sacred the memery of the Rag Baby; nursed in the brain of fanaticism; rocked by Thomas Ewing, George H. Pendleton, Samuel Cary, and a few others throughout the land. But it died on the first of January, 1879, and the $140,000,000 of gold that God made, and not fiat power, lies upon its little body to keep it down forever."

O young man, come out of that camp. That is no place in which to pitch your young life. Come out and come into this camp of liberty, of order, of law, of justice, of freedom, of all that is glorious under these night stars.

Is there any death here in our camp? Yes! Yes! Three hundred and fifty thousand soldiers, the noblest band that ever trod the earth, died to make this camp a camp of glory and of liberty forever, but there are no dead issues here. There are no dead ideas here. Hang out your banner under the blue sky this night until it shall sweep the green turf under your feet. It hangs over our camp. Read away under the stars the inscription we have written on it, lo, these 25 years. Twenty-five years ago the Republican party was married to liberty and this is our silver wedding, fellow citizens. A worthily married pair love each other better on the day of their silver wedding than on the day of their first espousals; and we are truer to liberty today and dearer to God than we were when we spoke our first word of liberty. Read away up under the sky across our starry banner, that first word we uttered 25 years ago! What was it? "Slavery shall never extend over another foot of the territories of the great west." Is that dead or alive? Alive, thank God, for evermore. And truer tonight than the hour it was written. Then it was a hope, a promise, a purpose. Tonight it is equal with the stars—immortal history and immortal truth.

Follow the glorious steps of our banner. Every great record that we may have made we have vindicated with our blood and with our truth. It sweeps the ground and it touches the stars. Come here young man and put in your young life where all is living, and where nothing is dead but the heroes that defended it. I think these young men will do that."—James A. Garfield at Cleveland, Oct 11, 1879.

Mr. Campbell's managers are putting their heads together these days and nights to see if they can not hatch a "job" to "set up" on the Republicans. They should not forget that "you can't fool all the people all the time."—Zanesville Courier.

PERFIDIOUS SILENCE

"A word from Senator Brice would have saved the tariff on wool"

JOHN SHERMAN

THE Hoeffer incident bids fair to become the most interesting of the campaign.

THE Washington Post remarks that "Jimmy Campbell is the circus parade that is to attract the people to their front doors, while Calvin S. Brice slips around the back way and works the senatorial game."

THE national committee can make no better selection than Pittsburg as the place for holding the next Republican convention. We would like to have it in East Liverpool, but Pittsburg has worked so hard for the plum that we gladly waive all claim in her favor.

CONSISTENCY.

The Dayton Journal loses no ground when it says:

"While Mr. James E Campbell is scoring the last legislature for authorizing five or six millions of county bonds, he has nothing to say of the 14 or 15 millions granted by his own legislature, which Morton L. Hawkins stigmatizes as the worst which ever sat in Ohio. That bond business is a matter of local interest for the reason that Dayton and Montgomery county is paying interest on $2,451,000 of bonds authorized by the Sixty-ninth, Seventieth and Seventy-first Legislatures. Of this amount the Campbell legislature, which was represented by three Democrats and no Republicans from this county and district, authorized $1,237,000. So there is the Montgomery county record, $1,236,500 in Campbell's term as against $136,000 in the last legislature. What kind of demagoguery is this flow of speech of our neighbor from Hamilton?"

GET OUT THE VOTE.

While it is probable that Candidate Campbell will be retired to private life in the next few weeks, the Republicans of Columbiana county should not forget to have every vote out on election day. The ticket is exceptionally good, from General Bushnell to the lowest office within the gift of the people, and it is the duty of all true Republicans to find the polls and cast their ballots. The Democrats are not doing a great deal in this county. Brice knows that his money here would only buy him a few scattering votes, and he does not care how many of that class go for Campbell. He wants the legislature, and it is in the close counties that he will work day and night in the hope of capturing a few legislative votes; but that is no reason why Columbiana should not roll up a big majority for Bushnell and the ticket. Give them all a big vote, and while doing it don't forget the duty owed to Charley Gill and every county candidate. We want them all in line, and every man elected by a majority that will show the measure of confidence which they enjoy. Let there be an outpouring that will not only prove the popularity of Republicanism, but one that will rebuke with righteous wrath the corrupt methods and lying arraignments of Democracy. Get out the vote, and show the people of Ohio that Columbiana knows how to do its duty.

ATLANTA'S GREAT DAY

The President and Cabinet at the Exposition.

SHOOK HANDS WITH THOUSANDS.

A Short Address Delivered by the Chief Executive—Hats Thrown Into the Air and Boundless Enthusiasm Manifested. The Party Leaves For Washington.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 24.—In accordance with the plans of the exposition management the exercises of president's day were all concentrated within the exposition grounds, into which the cohorts of visitors and large proportion of the population of the city emptied themselves during the morning.

After a review of the military the president delivered an address. He was introduced by President Collier of the Exposition company, who referred to him as the man who had been entrusted with the duty of wiping out sectional issues and lines.

The president was greeted by an ovation which lasted for several minutes. Hats were thrown into the air and boundless enthusiasm was manifested. His speech, although short, consumed considerable time in delivery because of the frequent interruptions of applause. At its conclusion Mr. Cleveland held an informal reception. A line was formed along the front of the stand and a squad of police kept it open. President Cleveland took a position on one of the steps and began shaking hands with all the people who pressed up to him.

For five minutes he grasped the hands of the great American citizens at the rate of 103 per minute. Then the number gradually lowered until he was shaking hands at the rate of one every second. In 15 minutes the president's face was covered with perspiration and he was evidently tiring. For 33 minutes he continued to shake hands with the throng and to speak a pleasant word to many.

He finally said that he was fatigued and the line was closed. The carriages for the party were driven to the stand and all were taken to the Piedmont club, where a cold luncheon with champagne was served to the company of 300 people. After luncheon the president began a tour of the grounds, visiting the government building, the main building, the negro building and inspected the exposition throughout.

The series of courtesies extended to the presidential party was concluded with a reception at the Capital City club which put itself on record as the most elaborate social function ever undertaken in the south. The chief executive reached the club accompanied by the cabinet and the ladies of the cabinet, and spent an hour or more receiving the 1,500 people present. Major Livingston Mims, president of the club, did the honors of the occasion.

After the reception the president and his party boarded their special train and left for Washington.

The Orizaba steamed about for some time, but found no trace of the crew of the burning steamer. She was built for the lumber trade at Wilmington, Del., five years ago, and registered 391 tons.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—A committee of the Pennsylvania Heat, Light and Power company have arranged the preliminaries of a 99-year lease of the property of the Edison Electric Light company with a committee of the directors of the latter company. Under the lease the Pennsylvania company guarantees an 8 per cent dividend on the Edison stock for two years and 9 per cent dividend thereafter.

Will Have to Flood a Burning Mine.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 24.—The fire, which broke out in the No. 5, D. and H. shaft at Plymouth and was extinguished, burst forth again a few hours later and has assumed such proportions that the officials of the company deem it necessary to flood this portion of the workings. With that end in view all the pumps were stopped and several streams of water were turned down the shaft.

Does Not Anticipate Trouble.

DENVER, Oct. 24.—General Wheaton, commanding the department of Colorado United States army, to whom Governor McIntyre has appealed to remove the northern Utes of Utah from Colorado, said that he did not think any serious trouble would arise, but he was having a careful investigation made, which would be completed in a day or so.

THE UNITARIAN CONFERENCE.

Church Extension and Temperance Reform Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Church extension and temperance reform were the themes before the national conference of Unitarians and other Christian churches. The discussion of church extension was opened by Rev. Charles W. Wendte of Oakland, Cal., who spoke glowingly of the outlook of the church on the Pacific coast.

Rev. George L. Chaney of Richmond spoke of the abolition of sectionalism in the south. The Rev. T. B. Forbush of Chicago said the central west awaited Unitarian missionaries, and he urged the appointment of 20 missionaries to work in that field. He urged also that Unitarian ministers should become evangelists as well. The Rev. A. W. Gold of Chicago said the problem to be faced in the central west was the division in the ranks of the Unitarians themselves. D. M. Wilson of Boston spoke of the progress in New England and pictured the outlook as bright and encouraging.

A meeting was held at All Souls' church, at which modern methods in temperance reform were discussed.

TO JOIN THE SPANISH FORCES.

Twelve Hundred Men and Boys Volunteer to Help Spain In Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—A letter received at the navy department from the commander of the United States steamship Yantic at Montevideo states that on Sept. 15 last the steamship San Francisco carried from that port over 1,200 Spaniards who had volunteered to join the Spanish army in Cuba. Eleven hundred of these were from Uruguay and the remainder were deserters from the Spanish army who had volunteered to return for service in Cuba.

A great proportion of the total number were mere boys. They were taken in charge on the San Francisco by a guard of Spanish soldiers and not allowed to leave. The ship bore no Spanish flag or insignia of nationality. No formal enlistments took place ashore, but each man, on boarding the vessel, presented a paper proffering his services to Spain.

COMPLICATIONS MAY ARISE.

Building of the Dam In the Rainy River May Cause Trouble.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 24.—International complications may arise out of the building of the dam in the Rainy river at Ratportage, Ont. It is claimed that the level of water in the lake will be raised four feet by the dam and that 60,000 acres of fertile land belonging mostly to the United States will be flooded. The Baltimore Packing company also claims that it will cost $20,000 to reconstruct its fishing plant. The Canadian shore is high and precipitous and Canadian interests will not be affected.

Formal complaint, lodged with the Federal authorities, has resulted in the dispatching of special agents to investigate.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 24.—The Franciscan Sisters of St. Joseph's convent, this city, have purchased a hotel at Erlenbad, a celebrated resort in Germany, and will use the hotel buildings and grounds for the mother house of the order, which is to be re-established in Europe. Erlenbad is but a few miles from the old home of the order, from which the sisters were driven in 1872 by the government.

Devoured by Hogs.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Oct. 24.—The 2-year-old child of Mrs. George Richards of Ford county was pulled into the hogpen by the hogs and was devoured before the eyes of the mother, who, attracted to the spot by the child's screams, was too late to render any assistance, though she caught an arm of the child, which the hogs then severed from the body.

APPROACHING THE END

The Testimony In the Trial of Durrant Completed.

ARGUMENT OF THE CASE TO BEGIN

After a Bitter Legal Struggle of Three Months the Defense Has Virtually Proven Nothing — A San Francisco Paper Sums Up the Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—After a bitter legal struggle lasting three months the testimony in the trial of Theodore Durrant is all in and the argument of the case will begin at once. When court adjourned District Attorney Barnes announced that he would not formally close the case for the people, and notified the attorneys for the defense that at most he would have but one more witness, whose examination would last but a few minutes.

The case would have ended in a pyrotechnic display of sensation if the testimony that was introduced had not been printed so often before that it was all familiar to everybody. Miss Carrie Cunningham, a newspaper reporter who visited Durrant at the prison frequently, testified that Durrant told her he saw Blanch Lamont on the second floor of the belfry, where she was murdered. While engaged in fixing a sunburner, Miss Cunningham said, he told her he heard a suspicious noise in the belfry, which attracted his attention. He crept along the ceiling of the church until he came to the belfry casing, where he looked through a crack and saw Miss Lamont.

The witness was subjected to a rigid cross-examination, in which an effort was made to show the means in which she had resorted to obtain interviews with Durrant. She said at the suggestion of the newspaper by which she was employed she expressed the greatest friendship for the prisoner and frequently sent him papers, magazines and flowers. She denied that she ever took an oath and kissed the Bible after promising Durrant not to publish anything he told her. She said she promised Durrant she would not publish anything he told her, and kept her word.

Only two witnesses besides Miss Cunningham were examined. Both were physicians. Their testimony was important from the fact that it showed that Durrant did not have the appearance of one who had been partly asphyxiated when he met Organist King in the church on the afternoon of April 3. King testified that Durrant was pale and trimbling when he saw him. When on the stand the prisoner corroborated King's testimony. Drs. May and Rosenstein, who were examined, testified that the first effect of gas was to flush the face and lips and inflame the eyes. Durrant, according to his own statement, had not had the symptoms. Physicians also testified that a man who for five minutes had been subjected to fumes of escaping gas from 24 jets would be insensible.

The Evening Post, in commenting upon the close of the case, says: "Now that the evidence in behalf of the man charged with the Emanuel church murders is all in, it is fair to compare what has been proved with the promises made in the opening statement to the jury when counsel for defense said he would prove beyond a doubt the innocence of the accused. With apparent sincerity, he stated he would furnish an unassailable alibi which would be supported by the strongest kind of testimony. He further said he would impeach the chief witnesses for the prosecution, and even went so far as to claim that before the defense was all in, it would show that another man than Durrant was the murderer. He pointed the finger of suspicion at Rev. John George Gibson, but did not go so far as to charge him with the strangling of Blanche Lamont and the mutilation of Minnie Williams. How the defense has failed is a matter of record.

"The promised alibi has not been established, and the testimony of the numerous witnesses called to sustain it, in an indirect way impeaches the story told by the defendant on the stand. The page in the roll call kept by Dr. Cheney is all that stands between the prisoner and the scaffold. If there is one juror of the twelve who believes it correct, the prisoner's life will be saved. The prosecution has shown, however, that it is a mere copy, and an erroneous one at that. It can easily be appreciated then that the document carries very little weight, especially as it is impeached by the negative testimony of 75 students and Dr. Cheney, who have sworn that they have no recollection of Durrant's attendance at the lecture on April 3.

"The effort of the defense to impeach the testimony of the leading witness for the prosecution amounted to nothing. The attempt to prove Durrant's innocence fell flat, as not a vestige of evidence that was presented points to such a conclusion. In fact, the case of the prisoner was stronger at the close of the case for the people. So far as Rev. J. G. Gibson is concerned, not a fact has been produced to connect him with the case in any manner."

WILL UNSETTLE BUSINESS.

Request to Shorten Campaigns From the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24.—The Cleveland chamber of commerce will within a few days send to the chambers of commerce of 300 cities in the United States a circular giving the action of the Cleveland body in requesting the Republican and Democratic national committees to shorten the time of presidential campaigns from six months to three months.

The reason given for making the request is that these campaigns invariably unsettle business affairs and do an actual damage to commerce and manufacturing. The chambers to which the circulars will be sent will be asked to take similar action.

Was Duped by the Actress.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24.—Mrs. John Hawkins of Niagara Falls, who followed her husband and a variety actress to this city, has succeeded, by her hot pursuit, in breaking up the affair. Hawkins was deserted here by the actress, and the detectives have been given the intimation that the elopement was a scheme planned by the actress and her husband to bleed Hawkins, and that they succeeded in capturing all the money he had. Hawkins discovered that his wife was after him and has fled to Buffalo, whither she has followed him.

She Threatened to Suicide.

WOOSTER, O., Oct. 24.—Rev. W. Reed Newell of Chicago and Miss Mellicent Woodworth, a teacher in the high school of this city, were to have been wedded and a license was secured and a minister engaged. The bride's mother, however, is bitterly opposed to the union, and, it is said, threatened to suicide if they were married, and for this reason the nuptials were postponed. The couple have been lovers for years, graduating in the same class from Wooster university, and are bright young people.

A Fugitive Smoked Out.

MARTIN'S FERRY, O., Oct. 24.—Geo. Anderson against whom a charge was pending at Waynesburg, Pa., has been working at Glencoe. When the deputy sheriff appeared at Glencoe Anderson ran into an old coal bank and remained there until he was smoked out. The officers built a fire at the entrance and covered it with leaves. This soon filled the bank with smoke and Anderson came out half smothered and was taken to Pennsylvania without difficulty.

Victim of a Jealous Lover.

EATON, O., Oct. 24.—Miss Gertrude Lally, who was shot by her jealous lover, John Monsmith, a week ago last Saturday night, is dead, never having regained consciousness during all her ten days' suffering. Monsmith, who was released on a $2,000 bond signed by his father, was rearrested and put back in jail, and the charge of murder in the first degree will be placed against him.

Masonic Home Dedication.

SPRINFIELD, O., Oct. 24.—The final preparations for the dedication of the Masonic home are complete. The following grand lodge officers are now in the city: Grand master, Carroll F. Clapp, deputy grand master, William B. Melish; grand secretary, J. H. Bromwell; grand marshal, E. C. Guilford; junior grand deacon, J. P. Cameron, and grand tyler, Jacob Randall.

Found Dead In His Store.

PIQUA, O., Oct. 24.—Joseph D. Harnish, who recently purchased the Buffalo drygoods store here, was found by a clerk upon opening the store lying dead in a pool of blood. He had shot himself in the right temple during the night. Harnish left no message of explanation, but despondency over his business is assigned. He came here from Dayton, where he has relatives.

Coke Shutdown Probable.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 24.—Coal men here say they have information that a coke shutdown is probable. In the Kanawha valley the furnaces are not run half the time, and it is impossible to sell and ship the coke for lack of transportation, the railroads preferring to haul coal.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24.—Gertie Kemp, aged 17, is the plaintiff in a divorce suit tried in the common pleas court. Drunkeness is the ground alleged.

SMALL OHIO HAPPENINGS.

Sherman Rice, a 10-year-old lad, was kicked in the face by a mule at Dayton and is not expected to live.

The body of an unknown man was found on the banks of Alum creek, at Columbus. He had apparently shot himself.

The Central Ohio Teachers' association will hold its annual meeting in Columbus at the Board of Trade auditorium Nov. 1 and 2.

Valley Hutchinson of Findlay, an oil worker, has filed a suit against Daniel Cusac, a farmer, for $10,000 damages, for alienating his wife's affections.

Mrs. John Cullimen of Columbus was burned to death. As she was going upstairs to bed her hair caught fire from the flames of a lamp she carried.

The case of the Pure Food commission against Joseph Billingslea was heard by 'Squire Stephenson at Hamilton. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

The center wall of an old brick building at Hamilton caved in, burying two laborers named Naughton and J. Duemer under the debris. Naughton is probably fatally injured.

William Everett, an inmate of the Soldiers' home at Dayton, was struck by a piece of falling timber from a building in process of erection on the home grounds. He sustained a fracture of the leg and a number of broken ribs.

James White, a heater at the Burgess Steel and Iron works at Portsmouth, went to sleep while waiting for his heat to become ready, and fell from a scaffold into the ashpit of his furnace, fracturing his skull and receiving burns that will prove fatal.

W. B. Sisson and P. A. Bishop are held in Newark by the police on advices from Columbus and Canton, that they are wanted in the latter place. They have been posing as clairvoyants in Canton, Lima, Columbus and this city. They admitted having taken a pair of $75 diamond earrings from a young lady in Canton, to "magnetize" them.

GLORIOUS RECORD OF REPUBLICANISM.

A Classic Summary of the Achievements of the Republican Party—The Famous Graveyard Passage—A Word of Suggestion and Advice to Young Men Who Are About to Cast Their First Vote.

An Appeal to Young Men.

"I see in this great audience tonight a great many young men — young men who are about to cast their first votes. I want to give you a word of suggestion and advice. I heard a very brilliant thing said the other day by a boy in one of our northwestern counties. He said to me: "General, I have a great mind to vote the Democratic ticket." That was not the brilliant thing. I said to him: "Why?" "Why," said he, "my father is a Republican, and my brothers are Republicans, and I am a Republican all over; but I want to be an independent man, and I dont's want anybody to say 'that fellow votes the Republican ticket just because his dad does,' and I have half a mind to vote the Democratic ticket just to prove my independence." I did not like the thing the boy suggested, but I do admire the spirit of a boy who wants to have some independence. Now, I tell you, young man, do not vote the Republican ticket just because your father votes it. Do not vote the Democratic ticket, even if he does vote it. But let me give you this one word of advice, as you are about to pitch your tent in one of the great political camps.

Your life is full and bouyant with hope now, and I beg you, when you pitch your tent, pitch it among the living and not among the dead. If you are at all inclined to pitch it among the Democratic people, let me go with you for a moment while we survey the ground where I hope you will not shortly lie. It is a sad place, young man, for you to put your young life. It is to me far more like a graveyard than a camp for the living. Look at it! It is billowed all over with the graves of dead issues, of buried opinions, of exploxded theories, of disgraced doctrines. Here are the tombs of Squatter Sovereignty, the Dread Scott Decision, Slavery, the Rebellion, State Sovereignty, Secession and opposition to the war. You can not live in comfort in such a place. Before I leave this graveyard I must point out to you a new made grave, a little mound—short. The grass has hardly sprouted over it, and all around it I see torn pieces of paper with the word "flat" on them; looking down in curiosity, and wondering what the little grave is, I read: "Sacred the memery of the Rag Baby; nursed in the brain of fanaticism; rocked by Thomas Ewing, George H. Pendleton, Samuel Cary, and a few others throughout the land. But it died on the first of January, 1879, and the $140,000,000 of gold that God made, and not fiat power, lies upon its little body to keep it down forever."

O young man, come out of that camp. That is no place in which to pitch your young life. Come out and come into this camp of liberty, of order, of law, of justice, of freedom, of all that is glorious under these night stars.

Is there any death here in our camp? Yes! Yes! Three hundred and fifty thousand soldiers, the noblest band that ever trod the earth, died to make this camp a camp of glory and of liberty forever, but there are no dead issues here. There are no dead ideas here. Hang out your banner under the blue sky this night until it shall sweep the green turf under your feet. It hangs over our camp. Read away under the stars the inscription we have written on it, lo, these 25 years. Twenty-five years ago the Republican party was married to liberty and this is our silver wedding, fellow citizens. A worthily married pair love each other better on the day of their silver wedding than on the day of their first espousals; and we are truer to liberty today and dearer to God than we were when we spoke our first word of liberty. Read away up under the sky across our starry banner, that first word we uttered 25 years ago! What was it? "Slavery shall never extend over another foot of the territories of the great west." Is that dead or alive? Alive, thank God, for evermore. And truer tonight than the hour it was written. Then it was a hope, a promise, a purpose. Tonight it is equal with the stars—immortal history and immortal truth.

Follow the glorious steps of our banner. Every great record that we may have made we have vindicated with our blood and with our truth. It sweeps the ground and it touches the stars. Come here young man and put in your young life where all is living, and where nothing is dead but the heroes that defended it. I think these young men will do that."—James A. Garfield at Cleveland, Oct 11, 1879.

Mr. Campbell's managers are putting their heads together these days and nights to see if they can not hatch a "job" to "set up" on the Republicans. They should not forget that "you can't fool all the people all the time."—Zanesville Courier.

A STRONG STATEMENT.

What the Election In Ohio This Fall Means.

IMPORTANCE CAN NOT BE OVERESTIMATED

Ohio, the Home of McKinley, That Great Exponent of Protection, Should Triumphantly Elect the Entire Republican Ticket If She Wishes to Properly Indorse Him For the Presidency In '96.

By a Republican Leader.

Francis B. Loomis, Esq., Columbus, Ohio:

DEAR SIR—In reply to your favor of Oct. 10 I beg to say:

The importance of the election this fall can not be overestimated. Ohio is the home of McKinley, the great champion of protection. The convention which nominated General Bushnell and the state ticket unanimously adopted a resolution pledging the support of the Republicans of the commonwealth to McKinley as our candidate for the presidency. If we are not triumphantly successful this fall the result can not be other than unfavorable to McKinley's chances. In spite of the utterances of Democratic editors to the contrary, there are no factions in Ohio. At the Springfield meeting McKinley pledged his support unreservedly to Bushnell and to Foraker, and both of these gentlemen committed themselves with enthusiasm to McKinley; and John Sherman unhesitatingly pledged his support to all. The controlling issue in this campaign is protection, and McKinley stands forward as the distinctive representative of that issue.

Looking to 1896.

A greatly reduced plurality or a defeat for the Republican party this fall would, necessarily, give the impression throughout the country that the citizens of Ohio were wavering in their allegiance to that great principle. But, again, Mr. Campbell, in his speech opening the campaign, made a direct and reckless attack upon the administration of Governor McKinley. Governor McKinley's answer to these statements is complete and convincing; but, nevertheless, if Bushnell should be elected by a largely reduced plurality, or the legislature should go Democratic, Governor McKinley's administration would necessarily be reflected upon, and the chances of his nomination would be lessened. If the Republicans of Ohio are desirous of making McKinley president, they should be as desirous of making Bushnell governor and of making Foraker senator. The defeat of either the last two would be a blow at the former. Major McKinley is undoubtedly the leading candidate for the presidency. He possesses peculiar qualifications for the office. His record is unexceptionable. As a politician he is able, adroit, and yet honest. He is a model and devoted husband, an unequaled orator and a true friend. He is a candidate of whom any state might be proud. He is nearer to the hearts of the American people than any other man. His name is a synonym of Americanism. If Ohio desires to see him nominated, it must take no backward step. If the Republicans of Ohio desire to occupy a controlling position in the national convention of 1896, they must be triumphantly successful this fall.

An Election of Vast Importance.

But the coming election is of controlling importance for another reason. The political complexion of the senate of the United States may be determined by it. The house is safely Republican, but the senate is not. At present, in the senate of the United States, the Democrats and Republicans are about equally divided, and the balance of power is held by the Populists. No beneficial legislation can be enacted until March 4, 1897, when a Republican president is inaugurated, and not even then unless the Republicans have a majority in the senate. In order to relieve ourselves of the burdens of Democratic incompetence it is necessary to make the senate Republican. The question whether the senate will be Republican or Democratic may be determined in the next election in Ohio. Mr. Brice will make a desperate effort to elect a Democratic legislature. Money will be spent without stint, and every possible effort will be put forward to capture the legislature for the Democracy. The importance of this election can not be too strongly impressed upon the Republicans of Ohio. Even though we have a Republican house and a Republican president it will be impossible to correct the errors of the present tariff law and to pass other needful legislation unless we have a Republican senate, and the election of a Republican legislature this fall is, therefore, of the utmost importance. Our candidate for the senate is in every way qualified for that high office.

He is a brilliant orator, a tried Republican and and an able statesman. He is also a citizen of Ohio. We Republicans can not afford to see the next general assembly of the state controlled by the Democratic party. Our candidate for governor is in every way an admirable candidate. He is able and popular. He is a business man and this is a business state, and if he is elected he will bring to the administration of its affairs that same capacity which has characterized his management of the great corporation of which he is the head.

The Republican convention at Zanesville did three things. It nominated Bushnell for governor, it indorsed Foraker for the senate and McKinley for the presidency. These are the three things which the Republicans of this state have set out to accomplish. Each is as important as the other, and in order to successfully accomplish the last we must, in my judgment, accomplish all.

Very Truly Yours,

James B. Foraker

The Colored Vote.

Just outside of the Democratic state headquarters the other night two men, high up in the councils of the party, were heard discussing the political situation, and one of them said, "We've got a great scheme to fix the 'niggers' this year; they are all after the stuff, but they are not going to fool us. We're not going to take any chances on their getting the money and then throwing us down at the polls, so we just fix it this way, we give the coons so much on election day if they have not registered. If they register they don't get any money. On election day we'll have matters in our own hands. They can't vote and we can make any bargain we please with them.

TIMELY AND POINTED.

Advice of Hon. George K. Nash to Ohio Republicans.

MUST EXERCISE THE UTMOST VIGILANCE

And Be More Than Ever Energetic In Caring For Their Legislative Candidates to the End That Joseph B. Foraker May Enter the United States Senate on March 4, 1897.

The work of fully restoring the control of the national government to the Republican party can only be completely accomplished by the election which will occur in November, 1896. The best interests of our country demand that we should have a Republican house of representatives, a Republican senate and a Republican president. If after March, 1897, the senate of the United States should have a majority of Democrats, or if the balance of power should remain in the hands of the Populists, it will not be within the power of a Republican president and a Republican house of representatives to do the things which the good of the country requires, which the people demand and which are necessary to cure the evils from which we have suffered and still continue to suffer.

It seems to be an almost assured fact that the next president of the United States will be a Republican, and that the house of representatives, to be elected in November, 1896, will have a majority of Republicans. It is not so certain, however, that the senate of the United States, as it will be constituted upon March 4, 1897, will have a Republican majority. Even with the unprecedented upheaval of last fall it did not have one, and it will only be by the exercise of the utmost vigilance upon the part of all Republicans, that this desired end can be accomplished by the elections that are to occur between now and March 4, 1897.

Our political enemies understand the vast importance of retaining control of the senate of the United States as well, and perhaps better then we do. Therefore, every energy of the Democratic party, every sinew of war which it can command, every prejudice which it can excite, every enmity it can arouse, will be used to defeat Republican candidates for the general assembly and re-elect Calvin S. Brice. I beg of you, as Republicans, to be more than vigilant, to be more than ever energetic in caring for your legislative candidates, to the end that Joseph B. Foraker may enter the senate on the 4th of March, 1897, as a member thereof. No man desires more heartily than I do that General Bushnell shall be the next governor of of Ohio. No one can wish more earnestly than I do for the complete and triumphant success of the entire Republican ticket, and of every man thereon, but of such vast importance is the senate of the United States, that I would rather see my friend Bushnell and every candidate for an executive office on the Republican ticket go down in defeat, than to see the next general assembly of Ohio controlled by the Democratic party.—Speech of George K. Nash at Medina, Sept. 10, 1895.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

The Reasons For the Improved Condition of the Country.

The improved condition of the country is due to the fact, first, that the terrible menace, a Democratic congress, was powerless for any further harm. It is dead, and everybody, without distinction of party, is glad of it. Whatever improvement came afterward is due to the fact that the people last November decreed that they had no further use for the Democratic party, and that the party, tried, capable and true, one that had safely guided the country through all the perils of the last 30 years, was again to be in control of the house of representatives, and with absolute certainty that as the time limit was removed it will be restored to complete control in all branches of the government.

This is the inspiring hope to the country. To take away this hope is to plunge the country into the depth of utter despair.

Business Campaigns.

In the highest sense all campaigns are of a business nature; this one is more so than usual. We aim to vote for improved business affairs. Notwithstanding the feeble improvement in business now visible, is there a man in the state that believes a Democratic victory in Ohio would improve these conditions? Such an event would certainly work infinite harm. On the contrary, the success of the Republican party will inspire hope, and with increasing confidence that the party is to succeed in '96, will perceptibly add to the present improvement. There can be no doubt of the soundness of this position.—Ex-Governor Foster.

A Pirate.

Mr. Brice's gubernatorial candidate says that he is making a picturesque campaign. The people who have heard his speeches can judge as to the correctness of the adjective. The Hon. Frank H. Southard of Zanesville, who, by appointment of Governor McKinley, holds a state office of honor if not of profit, in an enthusiastic speech introducing Governor Campbell at Zanesville, declared that "Campbell has hoisted the black flag and asks no quarter and grants none." The black flag is the emblem of piracy and indicates that the man who fights under it is willing to fight without regard to the laws of nations or the customs and proprieties of civilization. In some respects Mr. Southard very aptly described the character of Mr. Campbell's campaign warfare.

The Republican party and press do not propose to fight in this irresponsible manner. Otherwise Mr. Campbell would have been blown out of water long ago, for a more vulnerable privateer never sailed the political main.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The afternoon train west was an hour late yesterday because the engine left the track at Glenfield. No one was hurt.

J. R. Cypher, who has been a resident of this city for some time, shipped his household goods this morning to Beaver Falls.

Work on the sidewalks in East End is being pushed with such vigor that people in that part of town hope to see them completed before the winter weather arrives.

Some individual with a burning desire to distinguish himself as an executioner was responsible for the death of several dogs on Fifth and Sixth streets last night.

Miss Anna Myers was compelled to dismiss her scholars at the central school today because of the cold. The room could not be heated, but the defect will be remedied at once.

Last night was the coldest of the season, the mercury dropping low in some parts of the city and surrounding country. A heavy white frost was the result, and people who watch the signs say that two more will bring rain.

For the first time in many moons the hotel proprietors are smiling and happy, and their rooms are well filled every night. The rush began several weeks ago, and in view of the poor trade of the past few years is the source of much gratification to the hotel men.

A few election bets have been made in the city, one last evening being heard of where the Democrat wagered that Bushnell would not have more than 50,000 more votes than Campbell. Another even bet was that Campbell would win, but the stakes were 10 cents worth of tobies.

The Epworth league of the Second Methodist Episcopal church were delightfully entertained by Misses Blanche and Mame Marsh at their home in East End. An excellent literary and musical program was carried out. These social evenings are pleasant events in the lives of the leaguers.

Schmelzenbach Brothers, of East End, are home from Sistersville, where they have for three months been paving the streets. The authorities of the oil town have at no time ceased their exertions in assessing the gamblers who have made the place their home, and they have in reality paid for the paving.

Shantyboat residents are having a hard time of it because of the low water, and hundreds of them between Pittsburg and Wheeling are high and dry on the banks. Boats that have never been known to stay more than a month in one place have this year remained several months, because it was impossible for them to get away.

Miss Alexander, of the snag boat Woodruff, won the cake walk at Bradshaw hall last evening, which was one of the most pleasant events of its character ever seen in the city. A large number of visitors from out the city were present, and materially aided in making the event successful, but the Liverpool guests did not number legion.

There will be no football game this afternoon. The party who were to erect the goals and mark off the ground failed to do their work, and they decided to postpone the game until some future date. The teams think they have not had enough practice, and want to put in a week or two more before they are ready for the public. They promise some good games before the season is over.

The Republican Central committee met last evening, and arranged for the McKinley meeting one week from tomorrow evening. The committees were appointed to look after the details, and the committee promise complete arrangements for a rousing meeting. One of the principal features will be the decorations, as it is understood the committee will make that portion unusually fine. Flags and bunting will be used in profusion, and citizens are asked to decorate as well.

It is said that Mr. Ludlom was in the city examining the street railway yesterday for a company of Cleveland capitalists who might buy the stock of Mr. Grover, but that is all. It was understood a year ago that Grover had sold his stock to Attorney Bolton, of Cleveland, but now it is believed that another deal is on the boards, and some new men are to become interested in the line. Tacked on the story is the assertion that eventually they hope to get all the stock and own the road themselves.

Manufacturers now have an opportunity to know what they suffer when the railroad company has no competition. When the river is high enough to allow the running of packets between this city and Wheeling, where they can reach the Baltimore and Ohio, the Pennsylvania is anxious to make good rates and do what it can to secure business, but a leading manufacturer is responsible for the statement that on such occasions as the present, when there is absolutely no competition, the Pennsylvania gives nothing but what it is compelled to.

SOILED BLANKETS.

We are just as careful as we can be; take good care of the goods, keep them well covered, but still we have quite a lot of blankets that have gotten soiled. We have sorted them all out, stacked them on a table in our basement and made prices on them that will make them go. Blankets of all grades are represented on this table; the good substantial country blanket, the fine zephyr wool blanket, the fine saxony wool blanket; all marked down to what we consider half values.

DRESS GOODS.

New plaids this week, new serges this week, new novelties this week, special values in black mohairs this week, 50-in fancy weaves at 50c per yard, worth 75c, just opened this week.

CLOAKS.

Our cloak business was never better, in fact last week was the biggest cloak week we have ever had. We are going to make this week a banner week if possible. We have the goods and have them at the proper prices. Don't buy a cloak until you have gone through our stock. Jackets are being sold largely to young people, and you will be surprised at the goods you can buy at $5.00, $7.50, $9.00 and $10. Then Fur Capes are extremely good for dress wraps. We have no hesitancy in saying that we show the most complete line in the city. Our store has a reputation in the Cloak business, and we are making every effort to keep it up.

A STRONG STATEMENT.

What the Election In Ohio This Fall Means.

IMPORTANCE CAN NOT BE OVERESTIMATED

Ohio, the Home of McKinley, That Great Exponent of Protection, Should Triumphantly Elect the Entire Republican Ticket If She Wishes to Properly Indorse Him For the Presidency In '96.

By a Republican Leader.

Francis B. Loomis, Esq., Columbus, Ohio:

DEAR SIR—In reply to your favor of Oct. 10 I beg to say:

The importance of the election this fall can not be overestimated. Ohio is the home of McKinley, the great champion of protection. The convention which nominated General Bushnell and the state ticket unanimously adopted a resolution pledging the support of the Republicans of the commonwealth to McKinley as our candidate for the presidency. If we are not triumphantly successful this fall the result can not be other than unfavorable to McKinley's chances. In spite of the utterances of Democratic editors to the contrary, there are no factions in Ohio. At the Springfield meeting McKinley pledged his support unreservedly to Bushnell and to Foraker, and both of these gentlemen committed themselves with enthusiasm to McKinley; and John Sherman unhesitatingly pledged his support to all. The controlling issue in this campaign is protection, and McKinley stands forward as the distinctive representative of that issue.

Looking to 1896.

A greatly reduced plurality or a defeat for the Republican party this fall would, necessarily, give the impression throughout the country that the citizens of Ohio were wavering in their allegiance to that great principle. But, again, Mr. Campbell, in his speech opening the campaign, made a direct and reckless attack upon the administration of Governor McKinley. Governor McKinley's answer to these statements is complete and convincing; but, nevertheless, if Bushnell should be elected by a largely reduced plurality, or the legislature should go Democratic, Governor McKinley's administration would necessarily be reflected upon, and the chances of his nomination would be lessened. If the Republicans of Ohio are desirous of making McKinley president, they should be as desirous of making Bushnell governor and of making Foraker senator. The defeat of either the last two would be a blow at the former. Major McKinley is undoubtedly the leading candidate for the presidency. He possesses peculiar qualifications for the office. His record is unexceptionable. As a politician he is able, adroit, and yet honest. He is a model and devoted husband, an unequaled orator and a true friend. He is a candidate of whom any state might be proud. He is nearer to the hearts of the American people than any other man. His name is a synonym of Americanism. If Ohio desires to see him nominated, it must take no backward step. If the Republicans of Ohio desire to occupy a controlling position in the national convention of 1896, they must be triumphantly successful this fall.

An Election of Vast Importance.

But the coming election is of controlling importance for another reason. The political complexion of the senate of the United States may be determined by it. The house is safely Republican, but the senate is not. At present, in the senate of the United States, the Democrats and Republicans are about equally divided, and the balance of power is held by the Populists. No beneficial legislation can be enacted until March 4, 1897, when a Republican president is inaugurated, and not even then unless the Republicans have a majority in the senate. In order to relieve ourselves of the burdens of Democratic incompetence it is necessary to make the senate Republican. The question whether the senate will be Republican or Democratic may be determined in the next election in Ohio. Mr. Brice will make a desperate effort to elect a Democratic legislature. Money will be spent without stint, and every possible effort will be put forward to capture the legislature for the Democracy. The importance of this election can not be too strongly impressed upon the Republicans of Ohio. Even though we have a Republican house and a Republican president it will be impossible to correct the errors of the present tariff law and to pass other needful legislation unless we have a Republican senate, and the election of a Republican legislature this fall is, therefore, of the utmost importance. Our candidate for the senate is in every way qualified for that high office.

He is a brilliant orator, a tried Republican and and an able statesman. He is also a citizen of Ohio. We Republicans can not afford to see the next general assembly of the state controlled by the Democratic party. Our candidate for governor is in every way an admirable candidate. He is able and popular. He is a business man and this is a business state, and if he is elected he will bring to the administration of its affairs that same capacity which has characterized his management of the great corporation of which he is the head.

The Republican convention at Zanesville did three things. It nominated Bushnell for governor, it indorsed Foraker for the senate and McKinley for the presidency. These are the three things which the Republicans of this state have set out to accomplish. Each is as important as the other, and in order to successfully accomplish the last we must, in my judgment, accomplish all.

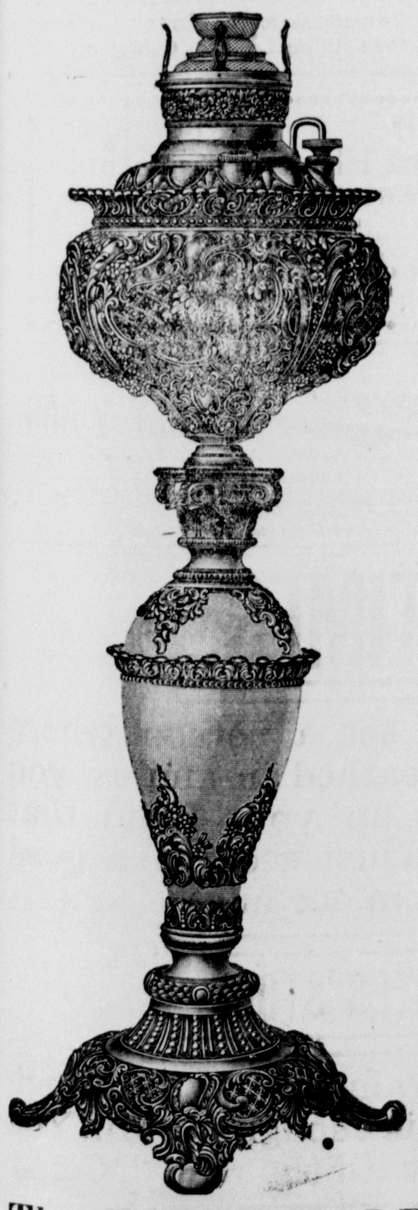

Very Truly Yours,

James K. Nash

The Colored Vote.

Just outside of the Democratic state headquarters the other night two men, high up in the councils of the party, were heard discussing the political situation, and one of them said, "We've got a great scheme to fix the 'niggers' this year; they are all after the stuff, but they are not going to fool us. We're not going to take any chances on their getting the money and then throwing us down at the polls, so we just fix it this way, we give the coons so much on election day if they have not registered. If they register they don't get any money. On election day we'll have matters in our own hands. They can't vote and we can make any bargain we please with them.

TIMELY AND POINTED.

Advice of Hon. George K. Nash to Ohio Republicans.

MUST EXERCISE THE UTMOST VIGILANCE

And Be More Than Ever Energetic In Caring For Their Legislative Candidates to the End That Joseph B. Foraker May Enter the United States Senate on March 4, 1897.

The work of fully restoring the control of the national government to the Republican party can only be completely accomplished by the election which will occur in November, 1896. The best interests of our country demand that we should have a Republican house of representatives, a Republican senate and a Republican president. If after March, 1897, the senate of the United States should have a majority of Democrats, or if the balance of power should remain in the hands of the Populists, it will not be within the power of a Republican president and a Republican house of representatives to do the things which the good of the country requires, which the people demand and which are necessary to cure the evils from which we have suffered and still continue to suffer.

It seems to be an almost assured fact that the next president of the United States will be a Republican, and that the house of representatives, to be elected in November, 1896, will have a majority of Republicans. It is not so certain, however, that the senate of the United States, as it will be constituted upon March 4, 1897, will have a Republican majority. Even with the unprecedented upheaval of last fall it did not have one, and it will only be by the exercise of the utmost vigilance upon the part of all Republicans, that this desired end can be accomplished by the elections that are to occur between now and March 4, 1897.

Our political enemies understand the vast importance of retaining control of the senate of the United States as well, and perhaps better then we do. Therefore, every energy of the Democratic party, every sinew of war which it can command, every prejudice which it can excite, every enmity it can arouse, will be used to defeat Republican candidates for the general assembly and reelect Calvin S. Brice. I beg of you, as Republicans, to be more than vigilant, to be more than ever energetic in caring for your legislative candidates, to the end that Joseph B. Foraker may enter the senate on the 4th of March, 1897, as a member thereof. No man desires more heartily than I do that General Bushnell shall be the next governor of of Ohio. No one can wish more earnestly than I do for the complete and triumphant success of the entire Republican ticket, and of every man thereon, but of such vast importance is the senate of the United States, that I would rather see my friend Bushnell and every candidate for an executive office on the Republican ticket go down in defeat, than to see the next general assembly of Ohio controlled by the Democratic party.—Speech of George K. Nash at Medina, Sept. 10, 1895.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

The Reasons For the Improved Condition of the Country.

The improved condition of the country is due to the fact, first, that the terrible menace, a Democratic congress, was powerless for any further harm. It is dead, and everybody, without distinction of party, is glad of it. Whatever improvement came afterward is due to the fact that the people last November decreed that they had no further use for the Democratic party, and that the party, tried, capable and true, one that had safely guided the country through all the perils of the last 30 years, was again to be in control of the house of representatives, and with absolute certainty that as the time limit was removed it will be restored to complete control in all branches of the government.

This is the inspiring hope to the country. To take away this hope is to plunge the country into the depth of utter despair.

Business Campaigns.

In the highest sense all campaigns are of a business nature; this one is more so than usual. We aim to vote for improved business affairs. Notwithstanding the feeble improvement in business now visible, is there a man in the state that believes a Democratic victory in Ohio would improve these conditions? Such an event would certainly work infinite harm. On the contrary, the success of the Republican party will inspire hope, and with increasing confidence that the party is to succeed in '96, will perceptibly add to the present improvement. There can be no doubt of the soundness of this position.—Ex-Governor Foster.

A Pirate.

Mr. Brice's gubernatorial candidate says that he is making a picturesque campaign. The people who have heard his speeches can judge as to the correctness of the adjective. The Hon. Frank H. Southard of Zanesville, who, by appointment of Governor McKinley, holds a state office of honor if not of profit, in an enthusiastic speech introducing Governor Campbell at Zanesville, declared that "Campbell has hoisted the black flag and asks no quarter and grants none." The black flag is the emblem of piracy and indicates that the man who fights under it is willing to fight without regard to the laws of nations or the customs and proprieties of civilization. In some respects Mr. Southard very aptly described the character of Mr. Campbell's campaign warfare.

The Republican party and press do not propose to fight in this irresponsible manner. Otherwise Mr. Campbell would have been blown out of water long ago, for a more vulnerable privateer never sailed the political main.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The afternoon train west was an hour late yesterday because the engine left the track at Glenfield. No one was hurt.

J. R. Cypher, who has been a resident of this city for some time, shipped his household goods this morning to Beaver Falls.

Work on the sidewalks in East End is being pushed with such vigor that people in that part of town hope to see them completed before the winter weather arrives.

Some individual with a burning desire to distinguish himself as an executioner was responsible for the death of several dogs on Fifth and Sixth streets last night.

Miss Anna Myers was compelled to dismiss her scholars at the central school today because of the cold. The room could not be heated, but the defect will be remedied at once.

Last night was the coldest of the season, the mercury dropping low in some parts of the city and surrounding country. A heavy white frost was the result, and people who watch the signs say that two more will bring rain.

For the first time in many moons the hotel proprietors are smiling and happy, and their rooms are well filled every night. The rush began several weeks ago, and in view of the poor trade of the past few years is the source of much gratification to the hotel men.

A few election bets have been made in the city, one last evening being heard of where the Democrat wagered that Bushnell would not have more than 50,000 more votes than Campbell. Another even bet was that Campbell would win, but the stakes were 10 cents worth of tobies.

The Epworth league of the Second Methodist Episcopal church were delightfully entertained by Misses Blanche and Mame Marsh at their home in East End. An excellent literary and musical program was carried out. These social evenings are pleasant events in the lives of the leaguers.

Schmelzenbach Brothers, of East End, are home from Sistersville, where they have for three months been paving the streets. The authorities of the oil town have at no time ceased their exertions in assessing the gamblers who have made the place their home, and they have in reality paid for the paving.

Shantyboat residents are having a hard time of it because of the low water, and hundreds of them between Pittsburg and Wheeling are high and dry on the banks. Boats that have never been known to stay more than a month in one place have this year remained several months, because it was impossible for them to get away.

Miss Alexander, of the snag boat Woodruff, won the cake walk at Bradshaw hall last evening, which was one of the most pleasant events of its character ever seen in the city. A large number of visitors from out the city were present, and materially aided in making the event successful, but the Liverpool guests did not number legion.

There will be no football game this afternoon. The party who were to erect the goals and mark off the ground failed to do their work, and they decided to postpone the game until some future date. The teams think they have not had enough practice, and want to put in a week or two more before they are ready for the public. They promise some good games before the season is over.

The Republican Central committee met last evening, and arranged for the McKinley meeting one week from tomorrow evening. The committees were appointed to look after the details, and the committee promise complete arrangements for a rousing meeting. One of the principal features will be the decorations, as it is understood the committee will make that portion unusually fine. Flags and bunting will be used in profusion, and citizens are asked to decorate as well.

It is said that Mr. Ludlom was in the city examining the street railway yesterday for a company of Cleveland capitalists who might buy the stock of Mr. Grover, but that is all. It was understood a year ago that Grover had sold his stock to Attorney Bolton, of Cleveland, but now it is believed that another deal is on the boards, and some new men are to become interested in the line. Tacked on the story is the assertion that eventually they hope to get all the stock and own the road themselves.

Manufacturers now have an opportunity to know what they suffer when the railroad company has no competition. When the river is high enough to allow the running of packets between this city and Wheeling, where they can reach the Baltimore and Ohio, the Pennsylvania is anxious to make good rates and do what it can to secure business, but a leading manufacturer is responsible for the statement that on such occasions as the present, when there is absolutely no competition, the Pennsylvania gives nothing but what it is compelled to.

SOILED BLANKETS.

We are just as careful as we can be; take good care of the goods, keep them well covered, but still we have quite a lot of blankets that have gotten soiled. We have sorted them all out, stacked them on a table in our basement and made prices on them that will make them go. Blankets of all grades are represented on this table; the good substantial country blanket, the fine zephyr wool blanket, the fine saxony wool blanket; all marked down to what we consider half values.

DRESS GOODS.

New plaids this week, new serges this week, new novelties this week, special values in black mohairs this week, 50-in fancy weaves at 50c per yard, worth 75c, just opened this week.

CLOAKS.

Our cloak business was never better, in fact last week was the biggest cloak week we have ever had. We are going to make this week a banner week if possible. We have the goods and have them at the proper prices. Don't buy a cloak until you have gone through our stock. Jackets are being sold largely to young people, and you will be surprised at the goods you can buy at $5.00, $7.50, $9.00 and $10. Then Fur Capes are extremely good for dress wraps. We have no hesitancy in saying that we show the most complete line in the city. Our store has a reputation in the Cloak business, and we are making every effort to keep it up.

FELL FULL FIFTY FEET

An Accident Out on Ridgeway Avenue.

THE HORSES NOT BADLY HURT

It Was Growing Dark and the Driver Did Not Know He Was So Close to the Edge—He Jumped In Time to Save Himself, but the Horses Went Over.

It is not often that a scraper drawn by two horses goes over an embankment 50 feet high, and any part of the outfit, except a lot of broken pieces, is left to tell the tale, but such a happening occurred on Ridgeway avenue yesterday evening.

A team owned by John Neice was hauling dirt on the new street, and the shades of evening were beginning to fall all around where he was working. There is no protecting embankment, and the driver, not seeing clearly in the gathering gloom, suddenly discovered that the team was going over the side of the hill. He endeavored to turn them into the straight way, but it was too late, and knowing that the only way to save himself was to jump out of the way he sprang into the road. The next instant the horses disappeared over the hill, and the driver walked to the edge expecting to see them crushed and dead at the bottom of the steep. But those horses were not made to be killed that way. They rolled over half a dozen times in going down the hill, and kicked and struggled with such force that when they reached the bottom they were loose from the scraper to which they had been attached, and free to wander at their own sweet will. They were bruised and sore, however, and far too weary to wander so that they were easily caught. That the team was not badly hurt or killed is a wonder for the fall was close to 50 feet. The hill is well known as a dangerous place, and few people would be willing to risk a roll down its side.

THE THREE STARS.

The Banquet Under Auspices of Caterer R. B. Allen, a Great Success.

The Three Star club banquet was an evening of pleasure for those who attended. Beaver Falls, Lisbon and Wellsville were represented by quite a number of ladies and gentlemen. The grand march was led by Mr. R. B. Allen and Miss E. Alexander, of Cincinnati. By the decision of the judges Miss E. Alexander was presented with a handsome crown for being the neatest walker. There was an elegant lunch, served by R. B. Allen, the well known caterer, of 120 Second street and 153 Broadway, who has had 18 years experience in the leading hotels of the west. Mr. Allen is prepared to furnish suppers for weddings and banquets in the best of style, on short notice, and also makes a specialty of live and dressed poultry and fresh oysters. Goods left at your door on short notice. Will be pleased to have you call.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by A. H. Bulger, druggist.

TO WIDEN PLEASANT.

Condemnation Proceedings Were Started in Probate Court.

Condemnation proceedings were today started in probate court at Lisbon, this city being the principal factor. The defendants are John Burford and William Smith, and the city declares that it wants the southwest corner of lot 1518 for the purpose of widening and extending Pleasant street. This is the matter that was brought into council by Solicitor Clark at the last meeting, who asked if council wanted to push the matter through or drop it for the present. The ground will cost the city $2,200, and the improvement is considered imperitive.

OLD AND NEW

Cases Disposed of and Others Added to the Docket.

Special to NEWS REVIEW.

LISBON, Oct. 24.—Catherine Woodward, of Salineville, today asked the court to divorce her from her husband, Ralph Woodward. They were married eight years ago but owing to his drinking habits and cruel treatment she was compelled to leave him two weeks ago. He accused her of stealing $1,000 from him and had an affidavit made out charging her with the deed. She says he has $2500 in money, and valuable property in Salineville, and along with the divorce asks alimony.

The case of John S. Dixon versus John Goddard was appealed from the court of Squire Morley today. The suit was for $225 damages said to hav been sustained by horses which the plaintiff owned. He got a verdict for $85 in the squire's court, but the arrangement was not satisfactory.

William Temple, of Hanover, filed the star suit of the day by asking the executor of his father's estate to pay him $625. Temple was a soldier in the late war, and before entering the service in February of 1864 received bounty money to that amount. He had no desire to take it with him, and he left it with his father. When the war was over he made an agreement with his father whereby the money was to be invested, but an accounting was to be made to him any time he demanded it. He never bothered his father about the matter, and last August the old gentleman died. Then he presented his claim to the executor, and it was turned down. Hence the suit.

Treasurer Cameron entered suit and got a judgment today against Thomas Rogers, of Salineville, for $152. The amount was due on an old account.

Mrs. Della Clingsmith was divorced from her husband, Judson Clingsmith, in common pleas this morning. Neglect was the charge. She also got her maiden name, Della King. They reside in this place.

The First National bank, of East Liverpool, got judgment today against A. C. Bradshaw and Laura M. Barth for $1,612.42 on a promissory note that was given last May.

Louis Pohner, of Wellsville, plead guilty to three charges of selling liquor to minors, and was fined $50 and costs for the lot.

A NEW FORCE IN POLITICS.

The Political Cartoon Poster and Its Great Work.

About the value of highly artistic cartoon posters as a feature of campaign work, an innovation made by Mr. F. B. Loomis, with the hearty approval of Chairman Kurtz, the Columbus Dispatch says editorially:

The Ohio campaign has seen the inauguration of that which we believe will be a favorite power of the campaign committee hereafter. We refer to the use of the cartoons which the Republican committee is sending broadcast throughout the state. This idea is an adaptation of the English method of campaigning, but, as far as we know, it is almost entirely an innovation in Ohio at least, and perhaps in the other states. It must be apparent to all that the political cartoons are not only more effective in their special mission, but also more harmless than the great mass of literature which has formed a nucleus of the work of the literary bureaus of the past. The cartoon puts before the people a comprehensive argument and it expresses it so plainly that all who run may read. Before a cartoon at least a thousand per cent more people will pause than those who will read a campaign document. The cartoon "points a moral and adorns a tale," if we may use that time honored expression advisedly and justly, and it requires no diagram or explanation for even the most illiterate of voters. The argument of the orthodox campaign document is usually concealed under a mass of words and perhaps behind a bulwark of alleged, supposed or real historical fact. The cartoon may excite more vivid anger and may stir up greater partisanship, but it is better than the majority of campaign literature. Therefore we think that the day of the cartoon in Ohio has just dawned and that it will expand into a great force in the future elections. Without cartoons English elections would be almost barren ideal-ities. Who will say that the same thing can not be said about elections in Ohio in the future. The day of the campiagn document is almost gone. The newspaper is now the source from which the voters draw the bulk of their political education and information. With the newspaper for the fireside and the cartoon for the street, there will be furnished a dual force which must surely have a great effect upon the voters in any community.

Farmers Lose Millions.

In August 40,000 more sheep were slaughtered in Chicago than in the corresponding month of 1894. And yet August, 1894, was known as a panic month in the sheep market because of the effect of the free wool tariff bill. The reduction in the number of sheep in this country since the new tariff went into effect aggregates several million head, while the production of wool fell off 40,000,000 pounds in a single year. Over $100,000,000 is the loss to farmers in this way alone by the new tariff.—Charles Emory Smith.

A Fine Team.

FELL FULL FIFTY FEET

An Accident Out on Ridgeway Avenue.

THE HORSES NOT BADLY HURT

It Was Growing Dark and the Driver Did Not Know He Was So Close to the Edge—He Jumped In Time to Save Himself, but the Horses Went Over.

It is not often that a scraper drawn by two horses goes over an embankment 50 feet high, and any part of the outfit, except a lot of broken pieces, is left to tell the tale, but such a happening occurred on Ridgeway avenue yesterday evening.

A team owned by John Neice was hauling dirt on the new street, and the shades of evening were beginning to fall all around where he was working. There is no protecting embankment, and the driver, not seeing clearly in the gathering gloom, suddenly discovered that the team was going over the side of the hill. He endeavored to turn them into the straight way, but it was too late, and knowing that the only way to save himself was to jump out of the way he sprang into the road. The next instant the horses disappeared over the hill, and the driver walked to the edge expecting to see them crushed and dead at the bottom of the steep. But those horses were not made to be killed that way. They rolled over half a dozen times in going down the hill, and kicked and struggled with such force that when they reached the bottom they were loose from the scraper to which they had been attached, and free to wander at their own sweet will. They were bruised and sore, however, and far too weary to wander so that they were easily caught. That the team was not badly hurt or killed is a wonder for the fall was close to 50 feet. The hill is well known as a dangerous place, and few people would be willing to risk a roll down its side.

THE THREE STARS.

The Banquet Under Auspices of Caterer R. B. Allen, a Great Success.

The Three Star club banquet was an evening of pleasure for those who attended. Beaver Falls, Lisbon and Wellsville were represented by quite a number of ladies and gentlemen. The grand march was led by Mr. R. B Allen and Miss E Alexander, of Cincinnati. By the decision of the judges Miss E. Alexander was presented with a handsome crown for being the neatest walker. There was an elegant lunch, served by R. B. Allen, the well known caterer, of 120 Second street and 153 Broadway, who has had 18 years experience in the leading hotels of the west. Mr. Allen is prepared to furnish suppers for weddings and banquets in the best of style, on short notice, and also makes a specialty of live and dressed poultry and fresh oysters. Goods left at your door on short notice. Will be pleased to have you call.

R. B. ALLEN,

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by A. H. Bulger, druggist.

TO WIDEN PLEASANT.

Condemnation Proceedings Were Started in Probate Court.

Condemnation proceedings were today started in probate court at Lisbon, this city being the principal factor. The defendants are John Burford and William Smith, and the city declares that it wants the southwest corner of lot 1518 for the purpose of widening and extending Pleasant street. This is the matter that was brought into council by Solicitor Clark at the last meeting, who asked if council wanted to push the matter through or drop it for the present. The ground will cost the city $2,200, and the improvement is considered imperitive.

OLD AND NEW

Cases Disposed of and Others Added to the Docket.

Special to NEWS REVIEW.

LISBON, Oct. 24.—Catherine Woodward, of Salineville, today asked the court to divorce her from her husband, Ralph Woodward. They were married eight years ago but owing to his drinking habits and cruel treatment she was compelled to leave him two weeks ago. He accused her of stealing $1,000 from him and had an affidavit made out charging her with the deed. She says he has $2500 in money, and valuable property in Salineville, and along with the divorce asks alimony.

The case of John S. Dixon versus John Goddard was appealed from the court of Squire Morley today. The suit was for $225 damages said to have been sustained by horses which the plaintiff owned. He got a verdict for $85 in the squire's court, but the arrangement was not satisfactory.

William Temple, of Hanover, filed the star suit of the day by asking the executor of his father's estate to pay him $625. Temple was a soldier in the late war, and before entering the service in February of 1864 received bounty money to that amount. He had no desire to take it with him, and he left it with his father. When the war was over he made an agreement with his father whereby the money was to be invested, but an accounting was to be made to him any time he demanded it. He never bothered his father about the matter, and last August the old gentleman died. Then he presented his claim to the executor, and it was turned down. Hence the suit.

Treasurer Cameron entered suit and got a judgment today against Thomas Rogers, of Salineville, for $152. The amount was due on an old account.

Mrs. Della Clingsmith was divorced from her husband, Judson Clingsmith, in common pleas this morning. Neglect was the charge. She also got her maiden name, Della King. They reside in this place.

The First National bank, of East Liverpool, got judgment today against A. C. Bradshaw and Laura M. Barth for $1,612.42 on a promissory note that was given last May.

Louis Pohner, of Wellsville, plead guilty to three charges of selling liquor to minors, and was fined $50 and costs for the lot.

A NEW FORCE IN POLITICS.

The Political Cartoon Poster and Its Great Work.

About the value of highly artistic cartoon posters as a feature of campaign work, an innovation made by Mr. F. B. Loomis, with the hearty approval of Chairman Kurtz, the Columbus Dispatch says editorially:

The Ohio campaign has seen the inauguration of that which we believe will be a favorite power of the campaign committee hereafter. We refer to the use of the cartoons which the Republican committee is sending broadcast throughout the state. This idea is an adaptation of the English method of campaigning, but, as far as we know, it is almost entirely an innovation in Ohio at least, and perhaps in the other states. It must be apparent to all that the political cartoons are not only more effective in their special mission, but also more harmless than the great mass of literature which has formed a nucleus of the work of the literary bureaus of the past. The cartoon puts before the people a comprehensive argument and it expresses it so plainly that all who run may read. Before a cartoon at least a thousand per cent more people will pause than those who will read a campaign document. The cartoon "points a moral and adorns a tale," if we may use that time honored expression advisedly and justly, and it requires no diagram or explanation for even the most illiterate of voters. The argument of the orthodox campaign document is usually concealed under a mass of words and perhaps behind a bulwark of alleged, supposed or real historical fact. The cartoon may excite more vivid anger and may stir up greater partisanship, but it is better than the majority of campaign literature. Therefore we think that the day of the cartoon in Ohio has just dawned and that it will expand into a great force in the future elections. Without cartoons English elections would be almost barren ideal-ities. Who will say that the same thing can not be said about elections in Ohio in the future. The day of the campiagn document is almost gone. The newspaper is now the source from which the voters draw the bulk of their political education and information. With the newspaper for the fireside and the cartoon for the street, there will be furnished a dual force which must surely have a great effect upon the voters in any community.

Farmers Lose Millions.

In August 40,000 more sheep were slaughtered in Chicago than in the corresponding month of 1894. And yet August, 1894, was known as a panic month in the sheep market because of the effect of the free wool tariff bill. The reduction in the number of sheep in this country since the new tariff went into effect aggregates several million head, while the production of wool fell off 40,000,000 pounds in a single year. Over $100,000,000 is the loss to farmers in this way alone by the new tariff.—Charles Emory Smith.
